

The Internet must continue to be truly free. A free Internet can not be free if large telecommunications companies can determine which sites will be available to me. I want the freedom to be able to connect with every single site on the Internet. That is, sites from other countries, small and large business, small and large organizations, and even individual personal web sites. All people and organizations must have equal access to the Internet to maintain true Internet freedom. Please don't sell out our freedom to corporate interests.
