

Let's not only ensure Net Neutrality but go even further. How about the radical idea that President Eisenhower had when he decided to start the Interstate Highway system to permit all Americans the right to travel freely from state to state. Not via toll roads. But a free system of communication by car.

Now we need a system of free or nearly free communication by Internet and Broadband. Otherwise the United States will continue to fall further and further behind other countries....even some third world countries!!!

So please, do what the people want and not what the corporations want. For a change. And thanks for all your efforts.
