

More than a million Americans have called on Washington to protect Net Neutrality – the rule that lets me control my Internet experience.

It's now time for the FCC to respond and enact strong rules to keep the Internet free from blocking, censorship and discrimination.

This is an issue with real consequences for real people. Don't give in to pressure from AT&T, Comcast, Verizon and their lobbyists. This is arguably the most important issue facing us today, more so than terrorism, more so than gas prices and even global warming. This is no less than the freedom of an entire people, of the entire world. For only the second time in our history (the first being the printing press), have we been given a truly democratic medium through which anyone can express an opinion. Your decision will affect no less than the fabric of our democracy. I urge you to stand firm in support of net neutrality.
