

More than a million Americans have called on Washington to protect Net Neutrality – the rule that lets me control my Internet experience.

It's now time for the FCC to respond and enact strong rules to keep the Internet free from blocking, censorship and discrimination.

If Net Neutrality were to fall, basically the quality of life Americans now possess will decline in ways that are unimaginable. We will lose the ability to gather news and information apart from the propaganda fed to us by the MSM; our rights to free speech (which are already being severely jeopardized) will be further suppressed; our ability to create highly inventive, productive and profitable uses for the medium will too be jeopardized; and basically the United States would sink to the level of China and other nations who are known for their atrocities toward their citizens' rights and humanity. The way to keep America strong through these tough times is to keep the peoples' hopes alive and options open. One way to do this is to keep internet access uncensored and open to the public.

This is an issue with real consequences for real people. Don't give in to pressure from AT&T, Comcast, Verizon and their lobbyists. Stand with me and other Americans in support of a strong Net Neutrality rule.