

The availability of local news and information in North Jersey is miniscule. It is difficult to obtain information about local meetings, issues, and news. Major broadcasters should put more effort into making public affairs easily accessible. Especially in this digital age, it would not be asking a lot for the media to make a special section on it's web page for each community.