

David Sutphen, co-chair of the AT&T-funded Internet Innovation Alliance, says that Net Neutrality is a "distraction" that "only concerns those already online." Sutphen calls Net Neutrality rules "divisive new regulations," which could have "unintended consequences" for those seeking to bridge the digital divide.

Since 1996 Telecom companies have been making claims that they are attempting to "Bridge the Gap" and it is nowhere near completion today, 14 years later. Make Net Neutrality the law and this well may change in the short term. Our economy and the welfare of the world may equally depend on it!
