

David Sutphen, co-chair of the AT&T-funded Internet Innovation Alliance, says that Net Neutrality is a "distraction" that "only concerns those already online." Sutphen calls Net Neutrality rules "divisive new regulations," which could have "unintended consequences" for those seeking to bridge the digital divide.

All citizens deserve equal access to a free and open internet. With newspapers dropping like flies and all television owned by just a few the internet is by far the best way be informed.