

We keep adding more things to the tv band, eventually there will be interference issues. We need the white space left clear for future growth and to keep interference to a minimum.

Is there not room in some of the recently vacated channels to put some of these devices and not congest the tv band? It is time now to leave the band clear for future growth.