

The arguments made by advocates of so-called net neutrality regulations have been proven false by nearly a decade of experience since their concerns were first raised. The Internet is a remarkable free market success story, and the vast majority of Internet users are not clamoring for regulation. I own and operate a successful internet company and I fear that these regulations could potentially put me out of business or make it extremely difficult. The best thing the government can do is step aside and allow free enterprise to prosper. I urge you to reject new regulations and allow the free-market Internet to continue flourishing.