RE: MB Docket No. 10-56

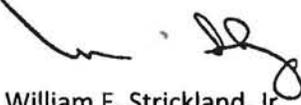

Dear Chairman Genachowski and Commissioners:

Since the founding of the Manchester Craftsmen Guild, we have dedicated ourselves to educating and enriching the lives of local youth through visual arts programs. We feel that by giving students an opportunity to learn in a safe and caring environment and by providing a sense of pride and accountability, we can better prepare our young people to lead meaningful, productive lives.

In tandem with this goal, we have developed strong friendships with many organizations who share our concern for youth development. Comcast has helped promote our organization by giving us a platform to convey our message on Comcast Newsmakers. This unique programming allows community leaders and elected officials an opportunity to connect with constituents and others in the local community who might not know about a particular group. Comcast's Keystone West Region has also featured a free "on demand" program about the Guild's overall vision and how we can help the next generation by working together, allowing members of the community to access additional information about the Guild.

We truly believe that Comcast has given us a powerful voice with which to reach our community. It has helped our organization to trained students through programs such as Digital Connectors. In summary, this is a company fully dedicated to assisting young leaders advance. We look forward to Comcast bringing this dedication to children to NBC.

Sincerely,

William E. Strickland, Jr.
