

I oppose the proposed net neutrality regulations because, if adopted, they would remove the free market forces that prevent government and extremist forces from monopolizing the “market place of ideas” that the internet currently provides. The internet works fine the way it is; reject the so-called net neutrality regulations.