

The internet must remain free from government regulation. It is as much about free speech as it is about free trade. Eliminating telephone and cable companies is not what our republic was founded on. I do not want to live in a country that is taken over by self-avowed socialists and marxists who will crush my ability to speak freely. If speech on the internet is going to be regulated then how much longer before I am told I cannot peaceably assemble to discuss matters of politics that I do not agree with? Net neutrality is a heavy-handed attempt to shut down dissent of the Obama administration. You cannot stop people who do not agree with the way the country is being run. We will prevail no matter how many roadblocks you put up.
