

I completely agree with the statements below provided to me by the FreePress. But I want to add my own sentiments. The Internet is not something that should be bought and sold like a commodity. It is a vast resource where every kind of transaction is being conducted.

Please DEAR GOD!!!

Don't let it fall into the hands of a few large corporations. That would be a failure of the trust we have put in the FCC. It is the most important telecommunications resource in the world.

Please do the right thing.

The following sentiments are from the FreePress, and I whole heartedly agree:

The FCC must reclassify broadband as a "telecommunications service" so that it can keep the Internet open and free of corporate gatekeepers.

Without vital Net Neutrality protections and the ability to enforce them, the Internet will cease to be a public platform for free speech, equal opportunity, economic growth and innovation. Instead, companies like AT&T, Verizon and Comcast, which have a commercial incentive to limit the free-flowing Web, will decide whose voices are heard.

You still have the power to protect the public interest. Please stand with us and keep the Internet in the hands of the people who use it every day.
