

I urge you to act on the National Hispanic Media Coalition's (NHMC) petition for inquiry on hate speech in media. I regularly see and hear hate speech in media over the radio, television and the Internet. Not only is this speech creating violence against people in my community, but it is also harming the psychological well-being of our youth. Today I join over forty civil rights, public interest and consumer protection organizations in pleading for the FCC to begin the process of collecting data and information on this issue, and to help us shine the light of transparency on media outlets that profit from fear-mongering and hate.
