Attachment A

California Public Utilities Code Section 767.5

767.5 As used in this section, the term "public utility" includes any person, firm, or corporation except a publicly owned utility which owns or controls poles, ducts, conduits, or rights-of-way used or useful, in whole or in part, for wire communication.

The term "pole attachment" means any attachment for wire communication on or in any surplus space on or in any pole, duct, conduit, or other support structure located in any right-of-way owned, controlled, or used by a public utility.

The Legislature hereby finds that many public utilities have, through a course of conduct covering many years, made available the surplus space on and in their poles, ducts, conduits, and other support structures for use by the cable television industry for pole attachment service, and that the provision of such pole attachment service by such public utilities is and has been a public utility service.

Whenever a public utility and a cable television corporation are unable to agree upon the terms, conditions, or compensation for pole attachments or the terms, conditions, or cost of the production of surplus space needed for pole attachments, then the commission shall establish and regulate the rates, terms, and conditions for pole attachments and the terms, conditions, and costs of providing surplus space needed for pole attachments so as to assure a public utility the recovery of not less than all the additional costs of providing and maintaining pole attachments, nor more than the actual capital and operating expenses, including just compensation, of the public utility attributable to that portion of the pole, duct, or conduit used for the pole attachment, including a share of the required support and clearance space, in proportion to the space used for the pole attachment, as compared to all other uses made of the subject facilities, and uses which remain available to the owner or owners of the subject facilities. (Added Stats. 1977, Ch. 954.)
