

I would like to voice my opposition to the proposed Comcast-NBC merger.

There is already too much power concentrated among large corporations with the power to control the information Americans receive. Our democracy thrives on the free exchange of information and ideas.

Comcast has already shown a willingness to censor what their subscribers may receive through their cable and internet systems. They must not be allowed to spread and increase that control to the public airwaves by acquiring NBC.

This merger would adversely affect competition and usher in more media consolidation as other media corporations try to achieve Comcast-NBC's power.

A larger monolithic Comcast will not address the lack of independent media in our democracy and is not in the public interest. The FCC must prevent this merger.
