

Wireless carriers should be forced to disclose to consumers when unusually high charges are being accrued.