

I oppose the proposed Comcast-NBC merger, and I urge the FCC not to permit it. Comcast should not be put in control of both conduit as well as content.

A merger of this size would give one company unprecedented control over media content and platforms. It would allow the largest cable and Internet access provider to control one of the nation's largest media companies. It would also give Comcast-NBC an incentive to prioritize its own online content over other content and stifle the free flow of Internet traffic.

That's too much power for one company, and it threatens competition and innovation at a moment when new forms of online video delivery are emerging.

The FCC should block this merger.