Re: MB Docket No. 10-56

Dear Chairman Genachowski:

At the Tech Council of Maryland, the largest technology trade association in the state, we are all about innovation. I am proud to say that Comcast is not only one of our members, it also has invested $2.16 billion in technology and infrastructure improvements throughout Maryland in the past 15 years. As a partner in our quest to innovate, we support Comcast's proposal to join with NBC Universal.

The Tech Council's mission is to promote the technology industry and to create an environment where technology companies can collaborate, grow, succeed and thrive in Maryland. Comcast is one of the Tech Council's most active members. Two of the company's local executives, including Jason Welz, Comcast's Regional Vice President for Business Services, help us by serving on our board and legislative committee and in shaping the priorities of our organization.

Comcast supports the goal of bringing advanced Internet services and products – and the economic and social benefits that come with them – to the communities it serves. The company not only has invested significantly in improving Maryland's technology infrastructure, but also is actively involved with digital literacy initiatives throughout our state.

The Tech Council of Maryland is excited by the innovation that Comcast's partnership with NBC Universal may generate and we encourage the Federal Communications Commission to approve this proposed union.

Sincerely,

Renée M. Winsky
Chief Executive Officer
