RE: MB Docket 10-56

Dear Chairman and Commissioners:

On behalf of One Economy Corporation I am pleased to make the following comments.

One Economy is a ten-year-old global nonprofit that maximizes the potential of technology to help people improve their lives and join the economic mainstream. Since 2000 we have fostered innovative programs and partnerships which bring affordable broadband, online content, and applications and training to millions of individuals in the United States and ten other countries. This track record has enabled One Economy to become the largest and most recognized nonprofit dedicated to utilizing technology solutions to support the needs and potentials of low-income individuals. The substantial Department of Commerce grant to One Economy for broadband adoption further solidifies this standing.

The work of One Economy is made possible by the quality of our partnerships. These partnerships enable us to leverage financial, human and technological resources to create public good. During this decade we have had numerous important partnerships but few rival the effectiveness and significance of our partnership with Comcast. I was personally involved as One Economy Chairman and CEO, and have been impressed by both Comcast's willingness to make strategic investments and their integrity in keeping promises to us and our community partners.

The growth of One Economy's Digital Connectors program is a microcosm of our Comcast relationship. This program leverages the talent and energy of youth with intensive training and community service to bring digital support resources to communities across America. This successful program however would be unable to scale without both the technical and financial resources of Comcast. In a relatively short period of time Comcast has become the largest financial donor to the Digital Connectors, enabling One Economy to scale this program to serve more local needs. Comcast also supplied financial and in kind resources to One Economy's match requirements for its Department of Commerce broadband adoption grant.

As important as the financial and in kind resources are to our success, the principles of respect and constructive engagement are equally important to our overall success. Since its inception, the One Economy/Comcast relationship has been built on an ongoing dialogue and engagement with the twin goals of solving problems and expanding new opportunities for individuals and communities. As Comcast seeks to expand, we engage them in constructive discussions about the best ways to insure that the full range of information and capacity needs of communities are met. These discussions predate any merger/acquisition talks.

Many will be involved in the decisions about Comcast's future, but One Economy's approach will be carpe diem. We believe that we can work with Comcast and others to solve long standing problems in terms of broadcast content production and community engagement. As technology and demographics change, so too must our goals and our strategies and we embrace ongoing engagement with Comcast to expand opportunities. Our confidence in the future is rooted in our experiences in the past and present. Thank you for this opportunity to comment.

Sincerely,
