

We have seen what happens when companies become "too big to fail," so it seems to me that the threat posed by the Internet providers, like Verizon and Comcast, is similar. Unless that FCC acts, we who have come to depend on the Internet for research as well as correspondence, need to know that Net Neutrality protections are in place and remain there.

Please reclassify broadband as a "telecommunications service," so users can feel protected from corporate censors.

Wayne Mahood