

I rely on the Internet as a public platform for free speech, equal opportunity, economic progress and innovation. Without vital Net Neutrality protections, companies like Verizon and Comcast, which have a commercial incentive to limit the free-flowing Web, can decide whether I will have a voice online or alter my message. These companies should not have the power to determine my fate on the Internet.

The Internet was developed with taxpayer money. Justice would not be served by giving private corporations control over the Internet.

The FCC must have the power to protect consumer access to the most important communications medium of our time. The FCC must stand with me and keep the Internet in the hands of the people who use it every day. Please reclassify broadband as a "telecommunications service" and keep the Internet open and free of corporate gatekeepers.
