

The Internet is vital to my way of living since it allows me to make a living. If corporate interests are able to limit, censor or control the Internet I will be impacted tremendously both economically and socially. There are many people around the world who now depend on the Internet for a livelihood so it is implicit that Net Neutrality be established now and forever or an already precarious economy may crumble.

Since it is readily apparent that the Internet is now a vital thoroughfare for the world in terms of economic, social and even cultural means I believe it is the responsibility of the FTC to protect the free flow of information on the Internet. I and others realize that big corporate interests have spent heavily to influence Net Neutrality on their agenda in the pursuit of profits and at the peril of all who use the Internet. Therefore I implore those in authority at the FTC to do what is right for the majority and defend Net Neutrality for the good of mankind. Please do not allow these corporations to censor or deny the information on the Internet.
