

I rely on the Internet as a public platform for free speech, equal opportunity, economic growth and innovation. Without vital Net Neutrality protections, companies like Verizon and Comcast, which have a commercial incentive to limit the free-flowing Web, can decide whether I will have a voice online. These companies should not have the power to determine my fate on the Internet.

What would happen to anonymous boards such as /b/ on 4chan? Although most of the content there is mind dump, it IS a place where people freely express their opinions. Are you, the FCC, willing to sell our rights as Americans, protected by the first Amendment, to cable and telecommunication companies? I might as well go to China if I want to get censored or have to pay for my freedom. This CANNOT be allowed to happen.

The FCC can't cut private deals that would hand control over the Internet to a few massive phone and cable companies. Any compromise that allows Internet providers to build toll lanes online is not real Net Neutrality.

The agency must stand with the public and protect consumer access to the most important communications medium of our time. The FCC must regain its resolve to protect Net Neutrality on wired and wireless networks. Please reclassify broadband as a "telecommunications service" and keep the Internet open and free of corporate gatekeepers.
