

Dear FCC: You Work for Me. Dont forget it.

Americans as a whole rely heavily on the Internet as a public platform for free speech, equal opportunity, economic growth and innovation. Being an American, a citizen, and a voter, I am horrified at the recent actions of the FCC.

Without critical Net Neutrality protections, companies like Verizon and Comcast -- which have a significant commercial incentive to limit the Web, can decide whether I will have a voice online.

These companies should not have the power to determine my fate on the Internet. No one should. That is what is meant by neutral, after all.

As a politically involved active citizen, our ability to practice free speech - although not guaranteed anywhere but the constitution, a much maligned but critical document, is a vital source of protection for all Americans. I value this right. I choose to use this right on a regular basis. Daily, in fact.

Why, why, are you doing this? What did they offer you?? Tell, us, please, do. How many billions is this worth to the FCC? How many individuals will make a lot of money from your actions. What incentive is there for you to go back on your long lasting commitment to the public?

The FCC can't cut private deals that would hand control over the Internet to a few massive phone and cable companies. Thats capitalism, but its not free speech.

Any compromise that allows Internet providers to build toll lanes online is not real Net Neutrality.***

The agency must stand with the public and protect consumer access to the most important communications medium of our time. The FCC must regain its resolve to protect Net Neutrality on wired and wireless networks.

Please reclassify broadband as a "telecommunications service" and keep the Internet open and free of corporate gatekeepers.

Why, why, are you doing this? What did they offer you?? Tell, us, please, do. Your Jane Public is not happy with you. Really.
