

Here is Jason Wells who is deaf-blind as usher syndrome. I am recomanded that you consider and keep our vision-impaired accessibility on cell phone. Like what most vision-impairment customers using tactile buttons, bigger screens, inclusion of screen readers, and magnification programs on cell phones. For myself, I have iPhone that is the most excellent vision impairment accessibility, but few problems are some Apple apps are needed to improved for better accessibility. Other deafblinds are having hard time to find the best cell phone with their accessibility that is not included iPhone. I hope that you two can be considered to keep our rights and encouraged to add ADA laws to be required every phone company to add our accessibility.
