

In a phone call message to staff, urged Commissioner Copps to support the Chairman's net neutrality proposal that offers a reasonable solution to preserving an open Internet. The proposed rules reflect policy that benefits the economy as well as consumers. Taking this action will also allow the Commission to move forward on the National Broadband Plan and other important issues impacting consumers.