

at&t put a cable running from the nearest engineering box to my house which runs across the street and all the way across my yard. Its laying on the ground and has been laying on the ground since May of this year. As cars run over the cable, it breaks it down and i lose dsl service every month or so. It is a inconvenience and hazard to my children.