Re: Preserving the Open Internet, GN Docket No. 09-191; Broadband Industry Practices, WC Docket No. 09-52
Framework for Broadband Internet Service, GN Docket No. 10-127

Access through the INTERNET to an extensive volume of information and in many kinds of formats has been truly revolutionary. It has stimulated a new and great learning curb; ways to find out about history; receive viewpoints that more restricted (time, space, differing perspective, financial interest) media prohibit; and created new formats and platforms to empower people to speak in their own voices.

If "paid prioritization" in any form is allowed, it will erode away at these possibilities. It is essential that the INTERNET be open and unfettered.

Censorship by a state as China is well known, and seriously frowned upon. But what about other forms of censorship? Google's waterdowned search engine to comply with Chinese rulers? Attacks by the record industry on Napster? The National Broadcasters Association attempt to hold the Local Community Radio Act hostage before federal legislators? Art commissioned by cultural institutions, then deemed offensive by a few and whitewashed out? Toll roads that discriminate against the poor? Church and state that insist on meddling with all women's private reproductive rights? Or, the abysmal ESPN Sportscenter coverage of women's sports at 1.4%?!

FCC Chairman and Commissioners:

In summary and conclusion:

- Adopt REAL Net Neutrality with enforceable rules.
- Ensure that paid prioritization will not be tolerated.
- Protect all levels of wireless from economic-motivated and content discrimination.
- Network management must not be a loophole for network operators to evade the rules.
- Reinvigorate your authority: protect citizens by promoting adoption and operation of a broadband market which fully serves the public interest.
