

There is an iPhone application called SpoofApp that allows you to call someone and have your number appear as ANY number you choose. This is incredibly dangerous, as people can pretend to be the bank, hospital, etc and actually have the call show that it came from that actual number. Predators could use this application to make it look like a mother or family member is calling when it is actually them. I would HIGHLY suggest you look into the privacy and safety laws that this application violates. This is the website:
