

This is a terrible idea. There are only 4 major cell companies in America, and reducing that number further will do more bad than good. I have been a T-Mobile USA customer for 6 years and I have never left because their prices are the best, and their customer service is phenomenal. I only hear bad things from my friends with AT&T, and quite frankly I don't want to give them my money.