

Cost effective GSM cell service with progressive practices and services is something I like having, this merger will only fuck the consumer harder, better service for some isn't really a worthwhile trade off for those who want things to be cost effective and less restrictive