

I think the merger between AT&T and T-mobile will be an absolute travesty for the American People. Too Many American Corporations are getting to big and crushing the little guy. The fewer companies we have the less competition and the higher prices are going to rise and the worse customer service will be. Case in point; for 30 years Comcast cable has been the only cable provider in our town. They had THE worst infrastructure and provided the worst customer service. They just didn't care and had extremely high prices for the sub par service they were providing. A year ago, Verizon Fios moved in and there has been a mass exodus from Comcast. I'm not saying Verizon is the answer, but now there is competition.

With only one GSM provider to choose from, the consumer is the one that is going to suffer. With two companies like Verizon and AT&T having subscriber bases that much more than Sprint, they will crush Sprint. If Sprint is Crushed or bout by Verizon, there will be again one less competitor.

These are the reasons I am against the proposed merger.

Thank you
