

I would like to protest the merger of ATT and T-mobile due to the fact that the GSM market in the US will be controlled by one company. ATT will have free reign to charge what they please and to a degree stop innovating their network since they will have no competition, and so other areas will suffer such as customer service and network service in general. The only people who will suffer will be the consumer and what employees ATT deems unnecessary. With already outrageous prices for plans and the nickel and diming that wireless companies do to the consumer already will only continue to get worse as the number of choices dwindles down. I can only hope that the FCC will rule in favor of the consumer and let the people decide who should get their hard earned dollars instead of the big guy swallowing up the little guy and sticking to those people who don't want to put up with the crap that ATT is currently offering.
