

COMMENT

May 5, 2011

Proceeding Number: 11-75

“Please do not allow the sale (assignment of license) of WMFE-TV in Orlando to CommunityEducators of Orlando, Inc. (CEO). CEO is primarily DayStar, a Christian broadcaster,that has teamed with some local church leaders. Public television exists to serve the broader community and WMFE has done that exceptionally well for many years. We can not reasonably believe that the same broad community will be served by any group, be it Christian or any other label, that by definition serves a single segment of the greater population.”

Those words were written by another commenter and I can't say them any better myself. The thought that a city the size of Orlando could be without public television is unbelievable. How can this sale be in the public interest?

Thank you.

Ginny McCormick