

There doesn't appear (at least to my knowledge) of any limits on how much of the broadband spectrum one company may bid on or own.

It would make sense to define these limits before such an auction is permitted. Or we'll see domination by 1 or 2 companies, which is entirely anti-consumer and anti-competitive. Consumers need choices and competitive pricing.