

My name is Melissa Rodriguez, and I am a Casselberry, Florida resident. I am also a stay at home mother. My three year old daughter loves PBS Kids programming. Shows like Sid the Science Kid, Word World, and Super Why! have already helped teach her how to read some words. These are just some programs that would no longer be offered if WMFE were to be sold to Daystar.

WMFE is currently the only station that broadcast the whole line of PBS shows and specials. The other stations that offer PBS programming are owned by colleges, and therefore do not broadcast over half of the PBS programs we are currently getting from WMFE. Daystar, a Christian company, will change the programming to one more Church based. We have more than enough stations in the Orlando area that service this particular segment of the population.

Please reconsider allowing WMFE to be sold to Daystar.

Thank you for your attention in this matter.

Sincerely,
Melissa Rodriguez
