

There are only a few businesses in the Mobile industry as it stands, the fact is that allowing this merger to occur will remove a competitor in an already shallow pool.

As a current T-Mobile customer, I am very concerned and believe the merger between AT &T and T-Mobile would not be in the public's best interest. It will result in less competition, higher prices, and a significant loss of employment.

Again, this merger is not in the interest of America or American consumers and utterly ignores the entire purpose of United States vs. AT&T.

The reality is that the merger of AT&T will result in a significant loss of employment throughout the United States as redundant positions in both companies are eliminated.

What will be the final impact in loss of jobs? Is this question being asked? Does anyone with the power to stop this even care?

Further, T-Mobile has one of the best pricing structures in the market, AT&T on the other hand, was the first to introduce data caps on their 3g and 4g data plans. They have consistently been among the first to introduce less consumer friendly data, text, and minute packages.

Eliminating the downward pressure on prices and competition created by T-Mobile would surely result in higher prices, stricter caps, and less choice and innovation for consumers.

To summarize, this merger is a really BAD IDEA and should not be allowed to happen.
