

I rely on GPS for safe navigation. I am alarmed that a company called Lightsquared says it's FCC authorization permits it to cause harmful interference to GPS receivers in the U.S.

Tests performed at the FCC's request have shown interference to GPS. The FCC shouldn't allow LightSquared to keep experimenting near the GPS band. LightSquared's operations and GPS are fundamentally incompatible and the FCC should order LightSquared out of that band.