

ANY technology or product that threatens GPS in its current form is simply unacceptable. There is no substitute for knowing where you are in relation to where you want to be, ALL the time, which is what GPS inexpensively and dependably provides to pilots, sailors, and the population at large that needs it.