

There should be a rule that 3rd party charges have a description specifying what they are for. "Service Charge" is too vague to really understand what the charge is.