

GPS is my primary navigation system in my airplane as well as my chief safety survival equipment. This is true for most pilots as well as vessels, emergency responder vehicles and many vital industry operations such as farming. Hence it is vital that the national GPS system be protected from broadband interference.