

This is in regard to the telephone information where the phone companies would hide charges. This would often happen on my phone and sometimes I would catch it and sometimes I would not. Is it possible that the FCC also makes the phone companies reimburse the people who had phones in a certain time frame for these kinds of charges? At one point I had as many as 6 phones between my home and work phones.

Thank You,
Marsha Webb