

Lightsquared broadband cannot be allowed to interfere with the Global Positioning System satellite frequencies. Too many industries already rely heavily on these frequencies and any interference will cause huge economic problems for existing users forcing them to seek alternate workflows that may or may not be available or workable.