

In all the areas listed the commission does not even mention cable television.

Can someone tell me why Cox cable charges about $70 for basic cable and at least 30 of the 60 channels or so are nothing but infomercials. If customers want that type of programming they should pay extra. Cox and the other cable companies are using all this worthless air time to justify expanding the network, when infact the network is adequate if worthless programs were eliminated. I realize the commission has a vested intrest in increasing band width, this means more money, by the same token I should be able to purchase a channel by channel.
