

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Susan Israilevich
3745 Crain St
Skokie, IL 60076-2205

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ethel Warren
10835 S Prairie Ave
Chicago, IL 60628-3620

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Miss Diane Wolniewicz
4736 N Long Ave Apt 2
Chicago, IL 60630-3447

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Florence Jacobs
1214 Prairie Ave
Barrington, IL 60010-5051
(847) 381-1974

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Frances Di Verdi
4824 Majestic Pass
Loves Park, IL 61111-7601

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Dawn Ishida
6639 N Trumbull Ave
Lincolnwood, IL 60712-3737

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Darlene Giesbrecht
18432 Perth Ave
Homewood, IL 60430-3024

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Donald Goldhamer
528 S Humphrey Ave
Oak Park, IL 60304-1713
(708) 386-2633

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Raymond Bibzak
19223 Crescent Dr
Mokena, IL 60448-7509

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Navin Sanghavi
1`425 Scotdale Rd
La Grange Park, IL 60526
(708) 354-2615

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gary Kerofsky
214 44th St
Moline, IL 61265-1933

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jack Wise
29 Half Day Rd
Lincolnshire, IL 60069-2206

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Harold Beaupre
2699 E 1000 N Rd
Kankakee, IL 60901-8008

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Craig Demakes
7720 W 131st St
Palos Heights, IL 60463-1911

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Chad Armknecht
8206 W 107th St
Palos Hills, IL 60465-1867
(708) 974-3984

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Foster
122 S Main St
Glen Carbon, IL 62034-1421
(618) 288-3321

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Judy Johnson
7807 Eleanor Pl
Willowbrook, IL 60527-2635

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Gutkowski
2050 N Sayre Ave
Chicago, IL 60707-3822
(773) 637-6981

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Edward Heintz
2249 Waterman Ave
Granite City, IL 62040-4004
(618) 797-1341

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

AS A MEMBER OF CUB, I CONCUR WITH ALL THESE RECOMMENDATIONS TO PROTECT THE COSUMER.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Thelma Ross
127 Rutgers Ct
Glenview, IL 60026-5913
(847) 272-7366

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Willis Price
1797 S Trainer Rd
Rockford, IL 61108-6822

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Laura Pentecost
140 Cherry Ln
Washington, IL 61571-1710
(309) 698-2241

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Hasten
3204 Hillside Dr
Wonder Lake, IL 60097-9331
(815) 653-0902

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Diana Urbon
846 Fox Chase Dr
Round Lake Beach, IL 60073-4102
(847) 548-8636

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dan Pokorni
4520 N Richmond St
Chicago, IL 60625-3826

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. D Nabasny
846 Fox Chase Dr
Round Lake Beach, IL 60073-4102
(847) 548-8636

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Diana Urbon
846 Fox Chase Dr
Round Lake Beach, IL 60073-4102
(847) 548-8636

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dan Pokorni
4520 N Richmond St
Chicago, IL 60625-3826

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kevin Schmidt
8407 Lorel Ave
Burbank, IL 60459-2664
(708) 425-3851

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Henry Maier
371 Cherry Valley Rd
Vernon Hills, IL 60061-2700
(847) 367-0230

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Nancy Swantek
5702 N Prospect Ave
Chicago, IL 60631-2928
(847) 292-4240

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Carole Jassen
3495 Whirlaway Dr
Northbrook, IL 60062-6307

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jan Barshis
2344 Pomona Ln
Wilmette, IL 60091-2216

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Anderson Yancy
2323 Alexander Ter # Hse
Homewood, IL 60430-3102
(708) 647-9487

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. victoria Ciofani
637 Auburn Ct
Crystal Lake, IL 60014-8910

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. ANTHONY ANANIA
5506 Silentbrook Ln
Rolling Meadows, IL 60008-2123

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Elizabeth McLoughlin
537 Hermitage Dr
Deerfield, IL 60015-4444
(847) 948-8902

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Lamm
1134 S Van Brocklyn Rd
Freeport, IL 61032-9390

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Eric Pihl
129 N Wilke Rd
Arlington Heights, IL 60005-1136

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

At the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Larry Simpson
336 W Wellington Ave Apt 2601
Chicago, IL 60657-5616
(773) 477-9486

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

I wasn't even aware of this "cramming" on billing. Please do all you can to support the consumers. Thanks.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Diane Sakai Furuta
1438 W Balmoral Ave
Chicago, IL 60640-1202
(312) 334-8161

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Aldo Mazzoni
81 Windsor Dr
Des Plaines, IL 60018-1228

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. C. Thompson
105 Augusta Rd
Oswego, IL 60543-8996
(708) 554-1321

Aug 10, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jerome Hossli
1301 W Fillmore St
Chicago, IL 60607-4806

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Julia Davis
902 20th St
East Moline, IL 61244-1728
309781

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Wilkinson
7719 W Summerdale Ave
Chicago, IL 60656-1657

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ben England
1155 W Lakecrest Dr
Peoria, IL 61614-5939
(309) 686-6149

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ronald Scott
1128 E Pintail Ct
Palatine, IL 60067-7056
(847) 359-5815

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Dorothy Brauweiler
525 Waubonsee Cir
Oswego, IL 60543-8725

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Shirley Jones
8458 S Oglesby Ave
Chicago, IL 60617-1939
(773) 978-2302

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rae Doberstein
242 Gillett Ave
Waukegan, IL 60085-2014

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Lerner
2733 Thayer St
Evanston, IL 60201-1344
(847) 328-8393

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Moira Johnson
1545 S State St Apt 706
Chicago, IL 60605-2520

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Charlene Barton
14446 S Heatherwood Dr
Homer Glen, IL 60491-7716

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeffrey Barton
42400 N Center St
Antioch, IL 60002-8992
(847) 395-4450

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Edward Shoro
865 Morton St
Hoffman Estates, IL 60169-1646
(847) 885-6554

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lynn Friedman
542 Skokie Blvd
Wilmette, IL 60091-2108

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sara Wilcox
696 Da Vinci Dr
Hampshire, IL 60140-5602

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

* WITH 'ALL DISTANCE' AT&T PLAN, THERE WERE 'NO HIDDEN FEES' UNTIL 1st BILL REC'D. $1.99 CARRIER RECOVERY COST ADDED.

* WITH 'ALL DISTANCE' AT&T PLAN, ADDITIONAL 'LOCAL TOLL CALLS' WERE 'ADDED'

* WITH 'ALL DISTANCE' AT&T PLAN, 'HIDDEN' TAXES WERE CHARGED FOR EVERY ADDT;L ITEM THEY CHARGE FOR.

* TOOK 4 MONTHS OF CALLS TO TRY & RECTIFY THESE ERRONEOUS CHARGES.

* LASTLY, A '2008' PAMPHLET WAS SENT - AFTER PHONE CALLS, THAT WAS COMPLETELY 'OUT OF DATE' - AND ONLY REPRESENTED 'ADDITIONAL FEES FOR LONG DISTANCE' PLANS'.

* THEY STILL CANNOT & WILL NOT EXPLAIN THEIR ERROR-FULL BILLINGS.

* THEIR ENTIRE ACCOUNTING SYSTEM AND PROMOTIONAL PROGRAM OFFERS - NEED TO BE SCRUTINIZED !

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jan Maurer
337 Dorchester Ln
Elk Grove Village, IL 60007-3807
(847) 439-3844

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Rodney Lhommedieu
1020 N Salem Ave
Arlington Heights, IL 60004-5340

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Preston Medrano
4330 S Saint Louis Ave
Chicago, IL 60632-3528

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Peter Caslavsky
2626 George Ave
Joliet, IL 60435-2944

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Miss Lana Jacobs
PO Box 1455
Bolingbrook, IL 60440-0854
(630) 772-3562

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. AKRAM SROUR
7033 99th St
Chicago Ridge, IL 60415-1171
(773) 552-0605

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. La Verne Deckworth
434 S Lewis Ave
Lombard, IL 60148-2937
(312) 865-5166

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

When charges like this appear on my bill, its like I don't have any control of my phone service even though I am paying a monthly bill.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Christopher Jones
7222 S Champlain Ave Fl 1
Chicago, IL 60619-1220
(773) 488-8664

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ronald Hackiewicz
9160 S 88th Ct
Hickory Hills, IL 60457-1622
(708) 599-2847

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sandra Lewis
2612 Rainbow Ave Unit 3
Bloomington, IL 61704-8595
(309) 824-8635

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Van Perrine
5242 N Magnolia Ave
Chicago, IL 60640-2203
(773) 218-5758

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Larry Unruh
9437 S Charles St
Chicago, IL 60643-5825
(773) 445-0102

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Best
12310 S Natchez Ave
Palos Heights, IL 60463-1766
(708) 389-7407

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mary Parish
5832 S Stony Island Ave Apt 15b
Chicago, IL 60637-2035
(773) 363-2415

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Barbara Hague
656 Rose Ave
Des Plaines, IL 60016-3130

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lori Nahrwold
101 Stonegate Rd
La Grange Park, IL 60526-1046
(708) 482-3205

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Fuller
17945 Homewood Ave
Homewood, IL 60430-1716

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marjorie Johnson
944 W 116th St
Chicago, IL 60643-5271
(773) 928-9753

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Ciez
1581 Far Hills Dr
Bartlett, IL 60103-3039

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Steve Higginbotham
409 Main St
Lerna, IL 62440-1113

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Doris Davis
520 Jordan Way
Bolingbrook, IL 60440-1380
(630) 783-0663

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Laliberte
3759 N Kenmore Ave
Chicago, IL 60613-6072

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jane Drews
506 N Crestwood Ave
Mchenry, IL 60051-7532

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. patricia Matz
302 Roger Rd
Darien, IL 60561-3971

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Pamela Dominguez
PO Box 21005
Chicago, IL 60621-0005

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Norman Pizzamiglio
2387 E 275th Rd
Oglesby, IL 61348-9669
(815) 223-1599

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Janice Dubinski
135 Marina Dr
Des Plaines, IL 60016-2241
(847) 827-7617

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen Limperis
1194 Chesterfield Ln
Grayslake, IL 60030-3795

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Milton Modjeski
7503 160th St
Tinley Park, IL 60477-1318

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Philip Thompson
1415 Hobson Rd
Naperville, IL 60540-9428

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marilyn Fleming
6401 Lincoln Ave
Morton Grove, IL 60053-2698

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dr. Arlene Zide
1357 E Madison Park
Chicago, IL 60615-2916
(773) 548-6240

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Mary Lou Mellon
2257 Royal Ridge Dr
Northbrook, IL 60062-8608

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Terry Daniels
4445 S Maplewood Ave
Chicago, IL 60632-1310

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lisa Anderson
1034 Brunswick Hbr
Schaumburg, IL 60193-4263

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ryan Danzinger
1536 N Hickory Ave
Arlington Heights, IL 60004-4042
(847) 870-9605

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Pearl Berman
18611 W Sterling Ct
Grayslake, IL 60030-4015
(847) 223-2175

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Linda DeWine
100 Avon Rd
Northbrook, IL 60062-1327
(847) 559-0778

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

This cramming has happened to me via AT&T and it took me awhile to straighten it out. They have no right to charge anything but phone service on my bill without my authority and better yet don't allow it at all!

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Theonie DiPego
540 Thornhill Dr Apt 218
Carol Stream, IL 60188-2711
(630) 653-2427

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bernard Mixon
418 E 95th St
Chicago, IL 60619-7401

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Karen Razim
3307 Krupke Rd
Caledonia, IL 61011-9570
(815) 765-1079

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

I do not condone having erroneous charges put to my phone bill without my consent. There needs to be more control over 3rd party charges on phone billings.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Curt Dunmire
528 Par Pl
Belvidere, IL 61008-8539
(815) 332-7085

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Douglas Wilson
11314 S Lothair Ave
Chicago, IL 60643-4134
(773) 238-7417

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kaushik Patel
3109 Glenhill Pl
Champaign, IL 61822-9372
(217) 352-9871

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Frank Krumpoch
PO Box 2001
Joliet, IL 60434-2001

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Budo
132 S Wilmette Ave
Westmont, IL 60559-2027

Aug 11, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

-oops, I misspelled stop as syop on my smart phone, the bastartds got me...

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Coscino
2638 Clarence Ave
Berwyn, IL 60402-2776
(708) 788-9841

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sarah Leyden Vazquez
2028 W Berwyn Ave Apt 1
Chicago, IL 60625-1155

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Charles Vazquez
2028 W Berwyn Ave Apt 1
Chicago, IL 60625-1155

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Phillip Harvey
205 Santos Ave
Minooka, IL 60447-9357

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jerry Rosemond
1144 Pitner Ave
Evanston, IL 60202-1047

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ed Quinlan
10456 Rachel Ln
Orland Park, IL 60467-1363

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bob Walasiak
6335 W Holbrook St
Chicago, IL 60646-4606

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Judith Matthews
1924 N Mozart St
Chicago, IL 60647-3933
(773) 697-8045

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Penzi
4116 Leighton Downs Dr
Rockford, IL 61101-6063

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Alice Lawson
811 N 3rd St
Monmouth, IL 61462-1308
(309) 734-5670

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Provost
19 Cutters Run
South Barrington, IL 60010-6169
(847) 804-6304

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dr. eliot Becker
3801 Mission Hills Rd Apt 306
Northbrook, IL 60062-5728
(847) 564-3801

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

In this long recession, it is more important than ever that you listen to and protect families hurting in this bad economy and NOT to lobbyists for phone companies who are still getting profits from "cramming"..

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Catherine Duoba
582 Bristol Ln
Elk Grove Village, IL 60007-3428
(847) 437-6956

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bob Hagele
222 N Columbus Dr Apt 2603
Chicago, IL 60601-7956

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard McDonald
804 Canyon Trl
Yorkville, IL 60560-4572

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gary McLaughlin
262 Staffmark Ln
Schaumburg, IL 60193-1612

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. J Anderson
4850 S Lake Park Ave Apt 1811
Chicago, IL 60615-2074
(773) 285-3071

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard De Lazzer
823 Kings Point Dr E
Addison, IL 60101-1709

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Woodfolk
1015 E Hyde Park Blvd
Chicago, IL 60615-2807

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Hollman
14506 S Indiana Ave Apt 2n
Riverdale, IL 60827-2811
(312) 965-8796

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Roseann Mazurek
515 Avondale Ln
Hoffman Est, IL 60169-1953

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Michelle Kollmann
30 Lynwood Dr
Plano, IL 60545-9615

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Holzhausser
10 E Hawthorn Pkwy Apt 535
Vernon Hills, IL 60061-1471

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sharon Krack
3169 Union St
Du Quoin, IL 62832-3414

Aug 12, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Currano
2734 W Jerome St
Chicago, IL 60645-1305

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Leona Foster
920 Boskydell Rd
Carbondale, IL 62902-7411
(618) 529-5505

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Teresa Pepper
337 Geneva Ave
Bellwood, IL 60104-1305

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Frederick Brown
3503 Gilbert Ave
Rockford, IL 61101-3243
(815) 963-8305

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. yolanda anderson
8751 S Parnell Ave
Chicago, IL 60620-2123
(773) 994-7689

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

The following should have priority. Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laurel Casper
9150 Meadowview Dr
Hickory Hills, IL 60457-1034

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Huszagh
1200 N West St
Wheaton, IL 60187-3578

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. vonzi anderson
1384 Pioneer Rd
Crest Hill, IL 60403-7523
(815) 641-3669

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Minnie Cobb
1420 W Farwell Ave Apt 306
Chicago, IL 60626-3498

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Campos
2127 W Thomas St
Chicago, IL 60622-3629

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

This is only fair to customers who have not requested these services but find it a headache to have charges removed.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mario Longoni
5222 S Ingleside Ave
Chicago, IL 60615-3889
(773) 752-0652

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

My children and I have all received text messages on our cell phones from third parties who, if one does not respond to the text in exactly the right way, will charge you $10 for receiving a "service" we did not ask to receive. When I complained to Verizon, they indicated that "there was nothing they could do".

Obviously, there is a great deal they could do but they are apparently unwilling to do it unless they are required to.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Todd Kinney
609 W Indiana Ave
Urbana, IL 61801-4833

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Karen Platt
3700 Capri Ct Apt 306
Glenview, IL 60025-3846
(847) 296-7662

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Howard Elmore
416 W Main St
Greenville, IL 62246-1615
(618) 664-0216

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

As a victim of this scam--had no idea that when I was answering some fun "game-like" questions on a computer advertisement that I was secretly signing up for some inane phone site. They charged me $10 per month until I realized what was going on. These companies should be fined for deceiving the public.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Linda Ehgartner
905 Lenox Ave
Waukegan, IL 60085-7439
(847) 249-0331

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Alan Hoffmann
8s710 Singletree Ln
Naperville, IL 60565-9234

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Billy Burnette
7490 W William St
Decatur, IL 62522-9564

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. M.Lynne Jungman
353 Flora Pl
Highland Park, IL 60035-5239

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Erwin Brinkmann
3500 N Oketo Ave
Chicago, IL 60634-3424
(773) 889-0366

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Why is the FCC never on the consumer, but always for the corporations. Its about time you get tough with all of them.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Zita Baltramonas
6963 N Bell Ave Unit 105
Chicago, IL 60645-4880
(773) 743-3196

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Kathy Jesuit
7602 Northway Dr
Hanover Park, IL 60133-2745

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Caryn Amster
1564 Columbia Ct
Elk Grove Village, IL 60007-2839
(847) 895-6449

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dan Dornbrook
310 Busse Hwy Unit 242
Park Ridge, IL 60068-3244

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. William Lowry
1023 W Vernon Park Pl
Chicago, IL 60607-3447

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gary Hackley
921 W Winona St
Chicago, IL 60640-3250
(773) 271-5530

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jose Arzuaga
1848 W North Ave Apt 1
Chicago, IL 60622-1310
(773) 919-0107

Aug 13, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Peugh
1806 21st Ave
Sterling, IL 61081-1648
(815) 626-1050

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kevin Carpenter
234 W Harrison Rd
Lombard, IL 60148-3309
(630) 426-0998

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gregory Smith
4538 N Kimball Ave
Chicago, IL 60625-5418

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lori Egner
1700 Pine Grove Ln
New Lenox, IL 60451-9649

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. LARRY HOZIAN
124 8th Ave
Bartlett, IL 60103-9518
(630) 497-9396

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Bradley
221 E 81st St
Chicago, IL 60619-3600
(773) 994-4754

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daryl Liquin
1008 E Williams Dr
Palatine, IL 60074-5633
(847) 358-1138

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Phone companies should be penalized (make the phone company pay the charges) for for unordered services/merchandise and refund the charges to the consumer. Incidentally that practice is called "stealing" when you take money that does not belong or owed to you.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Joyce Pachorek
530 S Enos Ave
Kankakee, IL 60901-3408

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joel Jonas
10407 S Michael Dr
Palos Hills, IL 60465-1904
(708) 598-2189

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

I was crammed and did not appreciate the fact that it was difficult to find the charge on my bill.

Third-party charges should be banned from their bills. It is a collusion in theft not to do so.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Eleanor Vega
2335 W Belle Plaine Ave
Chicago, IL 60618-2973
(773) 728-6664

Aug 14, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

I agree with this comment.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Ingram
1041 Bernard Dr
Buffalo Grove, IL 60089-3250
(847) 541-4689

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Terrence Bakalar
3806 Theodore St
Joliet, IL 60431-2746

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen Zurawski
10317 S Knox Ave
Oak Lawn, IL 60453-4728
(708) 422-1463

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. JOSEPH VICARI
2145 N 72nd Ct
Elmwood Park, IL 60707-3104
(708) 453-2854

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. M. Woodruff
1237 N Maplewood Ave
Chicago, IL 60622-2858

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. James Salkas
16430 Leslie Ann Dr
Tinley Park, IL 60477-1854
(708) 620-8908

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

This sort of thing happened on my gas utility bill and it took months to correct it! I had to call 3 times. Moreover, I learned from talking to others that such practice is routine.

This is a totally unfair practice. It's hard to believe a special ban is required to prevent what should obviously be an illegal activity, but if that is the case then please ban it!

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Martha Cook
909 Broadway
Normal, IL 61761-3702
(309) 888-2748

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Josephites
7224 W Talcott Ave
Chicago, IL 60631-3013
(773) 775-0898

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gary Fontanetta
7132 N Ottawa Ave
Chicago, IL 60631-1001
(312) 287-2504

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. K Piechowski
2522 Oak Park Ave
Berwyn, IL 60402-3411

Aug 15, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

- * This is a no-brainer. Why should I even have to be sending you this e-mail? Cramming should be banned. Period!

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kent Drysch
847 Dunhill Dr
Buffalo Grove, IL 60089-1545

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kenneth Pagni
6321 Willow Springs Rd
La Grange Highlands, IL 60525-4466

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lori Hogan
38690 N Bayonne Ave
Wadsworth, IL 60083-8616
(847) 436-4044

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. JoAnn Hunsinger
2802 Elm St
Franklin Park, IL 60131-3015
(847) 455-1538

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. THOMAS KELLY
9614 S Richmond Ave
Evergreen Park, IL 60805-2632

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Winifred Haun
228 S East Ave
Oak Park, IL 60302-3212
(708) 524-1262

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Linda Bousk
474 Lasalle Dr
Somonauk, IL 60552-9503

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Paula Raymond
13 W Elm St
Alton, IL 62002-5120

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Aaron Kuntz
4641 N Wolcott Ave
Chicago, IL 60640-4303
(773) 294-6069

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Carole Fowich
366 S Rex Blvd
Elmhurst, IL 60126-3719

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Howell
1211 Dauphin Dr
Joliet, IL 60431-5396
(815) 577-9871

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. H Goldberg
701 College Pl
Highland Park, IL 60035-1101

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jane F Rutter
26 Orlando Pl
Fairview Heights, IL 62208-2736
(618) 624-3394

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. ron miller
1560 N Sandburg Ter Apt 1104
Chicago, IL 60610-7709
(312) 643-1002

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Darlene Diaspro
25237 W Woodland Ln
Antioch, IL 60002-8448

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

I have been charged twice in recent months for services that I didn't order. These charges were removed by AT&T after I called, however, this takes time and costs AT&T time and money also raising all of our phone costs ultimately.

Again, please take the necessary steps to put a stop to this.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Janice Thomas
839 Independence Rdg
Springfield, IL 62702-3415

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Douglas Deremer
3148 Elm Ave
Brookfield, IL 60513-1306
(708) 387-9003

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Patricia King
324 Prairie St
Braidwood, IL 60408-2091
(815) 458-6065

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Boyce Carsella
27850 W Brandenburg Rd
Ingleside, IL 60041-8812
(815) 344-4869

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ina Sidelnyk
153 Williamsburg Dr
Bartlett, IL 60103-4046

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kenneth Markham
102 Park Ave
Flora, IL 62839-2229

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Gwendolyn Mcknight
9201 S Harvard Ave
Chicago, IL 60620-1508

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Like many consumers, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Heidrun Hoppe
2402 Isabella St
Evanston, IL 60201-1406

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kenneth Pohlmann
11805 Nottingham Dr
Huntley, IL 60142-7682

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Steven Bates
718 Noyes St Apt A2
Evanston, IL 60201-2849

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dr. JAMES MORRISON
1973 Florida Ct
Decatur, IL 62521-3629

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Eugene Chin
1082 Horizon Dr
Bartlett, IL 60103-1235

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Louis Wohlwend
2265 Lick Creek Rd
Anna, IL 62906-3239

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

There is not much coverage in the major market news outlets about this and it becomes just another "poor Joe" story but when you are the victim of this fraud it really hurts. Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Andy Watson
623 Catalpa Ln
Bartlett, IL 60103-5808

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Verne Block
2011 Sierra Dr
Pekin, IL 61554-6352
(309) 353-4456

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Duckett
1411 Janssen St
Pekin, IL 61554-5826

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Thorpe
325 N Lombard Ave
Oak Park, IL 60302-2505

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Vannette Lemon
1758 E 72nd St Apt 1-W
Chicago, IL 60649-2333
(773) 684-0615

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Lupo
5246 W Berteau Ave
Chicago, IL 60641-1443

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rita Toussaint
1280 S Paddock Dr
Wheeling, IL 60090-5948
(847) 520-5517

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Stephanie Kwasigroch
2903 Central Rd
Glenview, IL 60025-4047

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Roger Fatheree
PO Box 223
Clinton, IL 61727-0223

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Paula Hand
91 Van Dyke Dr
Canton, IL 61520-1150
(309) 647-4809

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Bonnie Brockamp
71 Meadowlark Ln
Springfield, IL 62702-4668

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carolyn Ogle
730 Monroe Dr
Lindenhurst, IL 60046-8728
(847) 356-8732

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Fred Wheeler
237 S 3rd St
Cowden, IL 62422-1007
(217) 783-2756

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Harry Rayfield
13 Meta Dr
Swansea, IL 62226-4505
(618) 234-2019

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Katherine Stephens
RR 3 Box 248k
Pana, IL 62557-9027
(217) 562-2215

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lula Gunn
9618 S Prospect Ave
Chicago, IL 60643-1222
(773) 238-4212

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Roy Hanson
11226 S Troy St
Chicago, IL 60655-2320
(773) 238-6845

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Roland Gladstone
5530 Washington St
Morton Grove, IL 60053-3462
(847) 965-5279

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Sheldon Appleton
12660 Crestview Dr
Huntley, IL 60142-7800

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jerry LeBeau
312 Locust St
Ottawa, IL 61350-3214
(815) 795-7912

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Arthur Fumarolo
5365 Fox Path Ln
Hoffman Estates, IL 60192-4547

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Haz Pate
428 E. Edwards St.
Ridgway, IL 62979

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * have a listed phone number to contact the carrier's Customer Service Reps with comments and questions on this and give them a person to talk to and not to press 1 or 2 or 3 for this or that option.

- *Have those Customer Service Reps living and working in Illinois and not in the Philippines!

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Potucek
1445 Ridgeland Ave
Berwyn, IL 60402-1148

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Nora Bishop
5145 E State St Apt 111a
Rockford, IL 61108-2349
(815) 636-9772

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Hunt
6009 Ross Dr
Woodridge, IL 60517-1127
(630) 663-0700

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Maura Canzano
1701 Chesterfield Ave
Glen Ellyn, IL 60137-4925

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Marion Bartys Jr.
746 S Wisconsin Ave
Addison, IL 60101-4840

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

please stop the immoral practice of cramming.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. paul Sebert
704 York Ct
Roselle, IL 60172-3064

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Karen Woest
788 Cutter Ln
Elk Grove Village, IL 60007-6903
(630) 713-4178

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Joy Gault-Dudick
1914 1st St Fl 2
Highland Park, IL 60035-3104
(847) 433-8429

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joseph Sessa
2151 W Bowler St
Chicago, IL 60612-4201
(312) 243-3660

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. W. Dean Mindock
114 Portland Ter
Collinsville, IL 62234-3637

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jean Gray
501 E 4th St
Long Point, IL 61333-5087

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

I completely agree with the sentiments expressed here. I would add that Americans have enough trouble keeping up with soaring costs and the poor economy. We really do not need to be paying for services we have not received.

Please impose the toughest rules against cramming possible.

Sincerely,
Charles Faivre

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;
- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;
- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Charles Faivre
1212 Elizabeth St
Dekalb, IL 60115-4443

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Cherry
6230 Grove Rd
Oswego, IL 60543-9295

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Eugene Walker
2488 Reflections Dr
Aurora, IL 60502-7303

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lilyane Valente
2760 Oak Rail Dr
New Lenox, IL 60451-2822

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lloyd Richardson
2900 Kipling Ct
Springfield, IL 62711-7974
(217) 726-5074

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. robert angsten
746 N Dee Rd
Park Ridge, IL 60068-2260
(847) 698-7460

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Chris Jensen
409 Saint Sabre Dr
Belleville, IL 62226-1050

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Gay Szara
1007 Duvall Dr
Woodstock, IL 60098-8867

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Andrew Koltun
3511 Vine St
Mchenry, IL 60050-8234

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Earl Bailey
PO Box 83
Medora, IL 62063-0083
(618) 729-4122

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lawrence Parker
436 Ascot Ln
Streamwood, IL 60107-6640

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Ban
13052 S Burley Ave
Chicago, IL 60633-1329
(773) 646-3970

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mike Thorlton
1122 Lakeridge Rd
Danville, IL 61832-1612

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Susan Zablocki
2570 Leyden Ave
River Grove, IL 60171-1660
(708) 452-0196

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jacquelyn Aspito
752 Rohlwing
Itasca, IL 60143

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Charles Pietri
5506 Grand Ave
Western Springs, IL 60558-2203

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. A. Bartkus
6619 Natasha Ct
Countryside, IL 60525-5333

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. A. Bartkus
6619 Natasha Ct
Countryside, IL 60525-5333

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lee & Betty Mishkin
790 Checker Dr
Buffalo Grove, IL 60089-1413
(847) 215-5211

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Timothy Miller
1020 23rd St
Rock Island, IL 61201-2710

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Betty Barnett
12662 Rock Island Trl
Huntley, IL 60142-7898
(224) 569-6755

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Miss BONITA WHEELER
1132 Ramona Ter
Machesney Park, IL 61115-3844
(815) 871-6371

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Marilyn Putz
2580 Oak St
Highland Park, IL 60035-1906
(847) 433-3439

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Best
12310 S Natchez Ave
Palos Heights, IL 60463-1766
(708) 389-7407

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mark Goldman
840 Krystal Ln
New Lenox, IL 60451-2696

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kristine Amundson
2136 W Schiller St Apt 2
Chicago, IL 60622-1868
(773) 862-2080

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Mona Castillo
525 W Hawthorne Pl Apt 1903
Chicago, IL 60657-2959

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marlene Herschander
2 Oak Brook Club Dr Apt C106
Oak Brook, IL 60523-1332
(630) 758-0241

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. George Mokriakow
120 W Laurel St
Millstadt, IL 62260-1926
(618) 476-3656

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Gustafson
3419 50th St
Moline, IL 61265-6619
(309) 797-1444

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Charles Arnold
6455 Spring Hill Close
Rockford, IL 61108-1506
(815) 871-4047

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Don't make the consumer search out the fine print to protect themselves; make anything like this an OPT-IN that we can clearly see what we are buying. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Eva Nelson
219 Country Club Dr
Prospect Heights, IL 60070-2567

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. C. Thompson
105 Augusta Rd
Oswego, IL 60543-8996
(708) 554-1321

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

We have been victims of such cramming with AT&T being the billing agent for some 3rd party who was unknown to us. When my wife questioned the 3rd party co., they claimed that the service had been ordered by Edna Sebastian--my mother--who had been dead for 9 years! I hold at&t to be equal partners in this cramming scam. Deceptive, deceitful and unfair.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gary Sebastian
4090 Harper Ave
Gurnee, IL 60031-3047
(847) 249-8653

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Noreen Oleksy
1004 S Vine Ave
Park Ridge, IL 60068-4822

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Miss Archidona Castaneda
330 N County St
Waukegan, IL 60085-4204

Aug 16, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bright Amudoaghan
8534 S Burnham Ave
Chicago, IL 60617-3102

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Russell Shipler
38w405 Hopps Rd
Elgin, IL 60124-8524

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Randell Strickland
353 E 57th St # 2e
Chicago, IL 60637-1267

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jean Lerman
921 Long Meadow Dr
Schaumburg, IL 60193-3951
(847) 301-8938

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

I ask that the FCC ban 3rd-party charges from phone bills. At the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

(1) list 3rd-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

(2) clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block 3rd-party charges from their bills, for free;

(3) include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. T McClinton
PO Box 20
Decatur, IL 62525-0020
(217) 848-3040

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Frederick Miller
111 E Penning Ave
Wood River, IL 62095-2028
(618) 251-4417

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Rudolph A. Spacal
437 Roe Ct
Downers Grove, IL 60516-3904
(630) 963-4164

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mel Barnum
72 Hillsborough Dr
Collinsville, IL 62234-1547

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. James Francis
7 Choate Rd
Park Forest, IL 60466-1851
(708) 747-0203

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cheryl Johnson
4 Rye Ct
Macomb, IL 61455-9703
(309) 837-3331

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Genaro Cantu
269 N Cornerstone Dr
Volo, IL 60020-3401

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen Moore
2010 Westgate Dr
Pekin, IL 61554-2422

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Barnet Bullock
7440 N Claremont Ave # 3
Chicago, IL 60645-1704
(773) 973-1284

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Tari Christ
7 Jaime Ln
O Fallon, IL 62269-1237

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dr. Karlene Ramsdell
1124 Moorland Ave
Shorewood, IL 60404-9618

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Benard Jackson
8327 S Peoria St
Chicago, IL 60620-3163

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Obrien
36646 N Edgewood Dr
Gurnee, IL 60031-1578

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Evangelina Rodriguez
2535 W Medill Ave
Chicago, IL 60647-3130

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Garietta Graves
8524 S Bennett Ave # 2
Chicago, IL 60617-2255

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nick Gallina
119 N Lincoln St
Westmont, IL 60559-1611

Aug 17, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Leona Foster
920 Boskydell Rd
Carbondale, IL 62902-7411
(618) 529-5505

Aug 18, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Linda Schoen
637 Church St
Batavia, IL 60510-2105
(630) 587-5635

Aug 18, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Donald Gentry
471 Dean Ct
Canton, IL 61520-2044
(309) 647-4442

Aug 18, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ben England
1155 W Lakecrest Dr
Peoria, IL 61614-5939
(309) 686-6149

Aug 18, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sandra Toomey
4313 Elm Ave
Lyons, IL 60534-1507
(708) 417-5279

Aug 18, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jim Taber
404 Audubon Rd
Streamwood, IL 60107-1504

Aug 18, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mary Plunkett
2459 W Cullom Ave
Chicago, IL 60618-1603
(773) 588-8517

Aug 18, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Woolsteen
PO Box 74
Rome, IL 61562-0074
(309) 274-2021

Aug 19, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Liz Szabo
3315 Walnut Ln
Mchenry, IL 60051-2666
(815) 363-7768

Aug 19, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs.Carolynn Lee
2808 Sunnyside St
Alton, IL 62002-1838

Aug 20, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Grashaan Davis
17408 Mahoney Pkwy
Hazel Crest, IL 60429-1750

Aug 19, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kevin Hubert
980 W Wilson Dr
Kankakee, IL 60901-2257

Aug 20, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Landon Petrie
10419 Saddlebred Trl
Woodstock, IL 60098-8672

Aug 21, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Beverly J. Bronowski
12022 S 68th Ct
Palos Heights, IL 60463-1604

Aug 21, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Bonita Figura
20741 S Frankfort Square Rd
Frankfort, IL 60423-8133

Aug 21, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Fremont
18114 Waterside Cir
Orland Park, IL 60467-5215

Aug 22, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ronald Prohaska
4845 N Kildare Ave
Chicago, IL 60630-2628
(773) 283-3559

Aug 22, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

This includes everything that I was about to say. Joan

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Joan Gordon
870 Western St
Hoffman Estates, IL 60169-1637

Aug 22, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please save us little guys from from rip offs by the greedy companies

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ron Routh
176 Oakwood Dr
Antioch, IL 60002-1660
(847) 395-0390

Aug 23, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Bonnie Fuller
401 Prides Run
Lake IN The Hills, IL 60156-4865

Aug 24, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Cheryl Fisher
408 Layman St
Benton, IL 62812-1432
(000) 000-0000

Aug 24, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kenneth Bergo
835 Forest Ave
Belleville, IL 62220-3713
(618) 277-2897

Aug 24, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Christopher Jones
7222 S Champlain Ave
Chicago, IL 60619-1220
(773) 206-2673

Aug 24, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Patricia Bertrand
287 Dunlay Ct
Wood Dale, IL 60191-2007

Aug 24, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Marcel Theboul
6817 N Francisco Ave
Chicago, IL 60645-2927
(773) 761-7690

Aug 25, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Colette Menn
10430 S Avenue E
Chicago, IL 60617-6347
(773) 721-6719

Aug 26, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kenneth Miller
931 S Tower Dr
Mt Prospect, IL 60056-4269

Aug 27, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carole Rebeiz
2209 Edgewater Pl
Champaign, IL 61822-7658
(217) 356-3675

Aug 28, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Deborah Drake
528 S Yale Ave
Arlington Heights, IL 60005-2240

Aug 28, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Karen Bibbs
8936 S Bishop St
Chicago, IL 60620-4906
(773) 233-9199

Aug 28, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Holzhausser
10 E Hawthorn Pkwy Apt 535
Vernon Hills, IL 60061-1471
(847) 680-3286

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Thomas
815 W Gunnison St
Chicago, IL 60640-4208

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Connie Staggs
4841 N Claremont Ave
Chicago, IL 60625-1909

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lou Anne Kelly
945 Maple Ave
Evanston, IL 60202-1717

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sally Levenstam
9221 Drake Ave Apt 402
Evanston, IL 60203-1626
(847) 329-0656

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Kolata
4448 N Malden St
Chicago, IL 60640-6292
(773) 275-9631

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lana Hampton
4517 N Ashland Ave # 2n
Chicago, IL 60640-5401

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dr. Bert Menco
840 Michigan Ave
Evanston, IL 60202-4411

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jacquelynn Kelly
1203 Florence Ave
Evanston, IL 60202-1126

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Gloria Saucedo
7806 S Knox Ave
Chicago, IL 60652-1137

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

- * list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

- * clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

- * include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Baker
1728 N Austin Ave
Chicago, IL 60639-4004
(773) 908-8032

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. barbara olson
30 E Huron St
Chicago, IL 60611-2766

Aug 9, 2011

Chairman Julius Genachowski
445 12th Street SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Genachowski,

As an Illinois consumer concerned about protecting my family's bottom line, I applaud the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in its efforts to toughen "cramming" rules and fight a phone scam that might be costing consumers $2 billion a year.

Specifically, I ask that the FCC ban third-party charges from phone bills, period. Short of that, at the very least, the FCC should require all phone companies--landline, cell phone, and VoIP--to:

* list third-party charges in a separate, easily recognizable, section of phone bills highlighted in red;

* clearly offer consumers--at the point of sale, on each bill, and on phone-company websites-- the option to block third-party charges from their bills, for free;

* include on phone bills and their websites information on how to file cramming complaints with the FCC.

Please, I ask that you stop bad companies from cramming my bills with fraudulent charges that serve no purpose but to pick my family's pocket. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kathleen Kouba
28w491 Laurel Dr
Naperville, IL 60564-9502