

just a question regarding my local radio station. They had broadcast on their news program today untrue statements regarding a local charity organization, without getting the directors statement or point of view. What they said and implied was slanderous and untrue. The radio station manager who announces the news was given false information and just reported what he was told by one source. Isin't this showing impartiality? As his source is a good friend of his.