

Today's EAS test was not very good. I have Comcast cable, and I was watching CNN news when the alert was activated. the cable box said EAS, the screen went off from HD to a small screen, there was still news program audio still playing. No announcement of anything to do with the EAS test. After 30 seconds, everything went back to normal operation. I think that cable companies need to address this problem ASAP. If I were not in the room when the EAS test took place, I would never have known that it even happened. not even a tone was heard. this is a serious problem that needs to be rectified right away. I know you can make this work, you just need to get the cable providers on board with this. Keep up the good work.
