

It is good news that the FCC has denied AT&T's T Mobil takeover. Allowing the merger to go through with regulatory concessions like a bunch of spectrum divestitures would be just as bad if not worse than approving it unconditionally. That being said Verizon Wireless had supported the merger so long as it does not produce more regulation of the wireless market which would have been necessary had the merger occurred though. Verizon's support without conditions for the merger should be investigated.