

Now I am noticing the sound volume starting to increase during a program BEFORE the station break. In other words, by the time it sequences to the commercial, we now have a commercial that is technically at the same volume as the program. Could this be one way the sponsors are trying to get around the CALM act?